Nagoya Profile

The Nagoya city, which since ancient times developed as the city of Nagoya castle, is a large city with a population about 23.1 million people. The city flourished as the center of politics, economics, culture, education and production in the Chubu region. In addition, the extensive transport system of the city (metro, bus, railway, Shinkansen) makes it very convenient for getting around the city and traveling. There are various universities and vocational schools, including the University of Nagoya, which created the Nobel Prize winners.
